

There is a set $N = \{1, \dots, n\}$ of players.

At the first round players either make a contribution of $c > 0$, or freeride by contributing 0.

If there are enough* contributions the public good is provided and everyone receives a benefit $b > c$.

At the second round an authority imposes a penalty h to non-contributors.